

10 Sienna adds bling

Uniquely stylish Sienna Miller is always creative on the red carpet. By adorning her Dior gown with a dramatically draped necklace, she creates a triangle that highlights the shape of her back, says StyleChic's Aly Scott (stylechicla.com).

BAFTA nominee Sienna didn't grab the Rising Star award, but she was a winner on the red carpet on February 10.

Kim is sexy from the side

"Sexy is not about big breasts or a skinny bod. It comes from within," says Kim Cattrall, who has the confidence to pull off this revealing look. It's tasteful because it shows flashes of skin, so you feel like you're seeing more than you are, says Scott.

The 51-year-old proved she's still sexy after 50 in her CD Greene gown in St. Petersburg, Russia, on February 18.

Scarlett goes retro

"My breasts are definitely my best feature — my leading ladies," Scarlett Johansson jokes. She's going for it with the cleavage, but the rest of her Oscar de la Renta dress is so demure and retro that it softens the sexiness, says style expert Danna Weiss.

7 Amy stays chic

Enchanted star Amy Adams is known more for being sweet than sultry. This look is both, thanks to the way the cutouts on her Narciso Rodriguez design are offset by the long, flowing fabric of the floor-length gown, explains Scott. "It's a chic way to be sexy."

◀ Amy held her own among the fashionistas at a UNICEF benefit hosted by Gucci and Madonna in New York on February 6.

6 Natalie keeps it classic

Natalie Portman has always had conservative style. This Christian Lacroix dress shows off her porcelain skin while the classic hairstyle and shawl keep her looking prim, says celebrity stylist Darshan Gress.

5 Beyoncé adds drama

"Everyone should dress appropriately for their body. I have hips," Beyoncé tells In Touch. To go backless, she chose a Georges Chakra gown with wide side streams that cover her curves but show off the toned part of her back, explains StyleChic's Aly Scott.

Beyoncé chose trendy yellow for the Sony/BMG Grammys after-party in Beverly Hills on February 10.

4 Rihanna dares to go short

"If I do shorts on the bottom, it's gotta be something very conservative on the top," explains Rihanna. Her Matthew Williamson hot pants are a great way to flash her gorgeous long legs without being too skimpy, says stylist Gress.

Rihanna's sky-high heels made her legs look endless at the launch of the Rihanna collection from Totes at Macy's in New York on February 5.

3 Victoria goes bold

Only someone with Victoria Beckham's petite figure and boundless confidence could pull off this super-racy Marc Jacobs design! The fearless fashionista says her golden rule about revealing designs is never to show boobs and legs at the same time.

Posh hit the pink carpet for November's Victoria's Secret Fashion Show in LA, where skimpy is the norm.

Kate always shines

Kate Hudson says her mom, Goldie Hawn, told her to "only wear what you feel good in." The Fool's Gold star looks and feels like a million dollars in this Dior gown with sparkling metallic material that creates a glamorous frame for her sexy back.

The actress glammed up from her usual girl-next-door look for the BAFTAs in London on February 10.

bares her shoulders

An elegant up 'do and a jewelry-free neckline allow Jessica Biel's strapless Dior by Galliano gown to draw attention her neck and shoulders, says Scott. "All the focus is on her body, and her smooth skin is an accessory in itself," explains Scott.
