Shop and Stay in Style

Aly Scott, stylist to the stars and founder of StyleChic (stylechicla.com), offers customized styling and shopping itineraries in conjunction with The Ritz-Carlton, Los Angeles (ritzcarlton.com). As part of the "Stylecation" package (from $1,800, rate code SOJA), Scott creates three-hour itineraries that might include a private white-glove atelier service appointment with a high-fashion fine jeweler, a visit to a custom couture atelier, lunch at The Ivy in West Hollywood, and a meet-and-greet with an up-and-coming jewelry designer—all the while getting Scott's insider fashion tips (and stylist-only discounts at shops). Other perks of the package include early check in and late check out, dinner for two at Wolfgang Puck's WP24 Restaurant & Lounge, and choice of a $100 spa credit or 60-minute personal training session.

FEEL-GOOD GETAWAY

A "good day" on the slopes may well depend on two things off the slopes: a hearty breakfast and plenty of relaxation to recover after the powder. With that in mind, The Sky Lodge (theskylodge.com) in Park City, Utah, is creating many good days for its guests with "A Free Massage for Every Day of Your Stay" package (from $630; through June 30). Just like it sounds, the package offers a free, daily 50-minute spa treatment at the on-site Amatsu Spa, plus breakfast at the property's Easy Street restaurant. Located in Old Town, the boutique hotel has just 33 one-, two-, and three-bedroom suites (the smallest checks in at a spacious

In the chic and cheery rooms at the Hotel Valley Ho, you can watch TV from a Philippe Starck-designed, freestanding tub.

SEEING SPRING TRAINING

The hip Hotel Valley Ho (hotelvalleyho.com) in Scottsdale, Arizona, is offering the "Spring Training Package" (from $249; through March 30) for fans eager to see the Cactus League's spring-training baseball teams square off in ballparks around the region. The package includes accommodations, breakfast daily, VIP nightclub access, and shopping discounts.

The resort-style property is located in downtown Scottsdale, within walking distance of restaurants, bars, and shopping; the free Scottsdale Trolley shuttles guests farther afield.

In keeping with the hotel's past history as a favorite haunt of Hollywood celebs (Bogey, Marilyn Monroe, Tony Curtis), Hotel Valley Ho offers round-the-clock room service and happy hour at two on-site restaurants. Design buffs will appreciate the property's midcentury modern aesthetic (architectural tours are offered twice a week by appointment only), and visitors needing a soothing escape from the balls and strikes will find solace in the steam rooms, movement studio, 24-hour fitness center, and spa.
